Jim:

I just talked to Glenda Ruggles and she remembers that there was a lot of talk at the CCPD that Olivia Escobedo was having an affair with a higher ranking (commander or below) officer in the department. Glenda does not recall who the officer was but it was common knowledge that Olivia held her position in detectives not because she was capable of performing the duties of a detective but because of the affair she was having. Glenda described Olivia Escobedo as "totally useless," "she didn't even know enough about her job to know she didn't know how to do it."

Hope this is helpful.
